

Marcus Bouligny – Coordinator for Training and Technical Assistance

Marcus Bouligny comes to Prospectus Group from CSAP's Southeast Center for the Application of Prevention Technologies. In this position, Mr. Bouligny serves as primary contact for the assigned states of Alabama and Georgia. His work with these states and other states in the Southeast Region includes: building state prevention infrastructure in order to receive SPF-SIG grants, developing and implementing annual work plans; assisting state governments with the implementation of federal prevention grants; training state governments in the federal prevention model—Strategic Prevention Framework; conducting meetings and workshops; and delivering keynote and plenary session presentations. Mr. Bouligny has worked as a consultant with a variety of community based organizations and agencies to assist them in arriving at community wide outcomes.

His work as Program Manager with the Gateway Project, Bay Area Community Resources focused on county-wide programs for at-risk youth. He has extensive experience in tobacco prevention and successfully coordinated environmental tobacco prevention initiatives in the Bay area. Mr. Bouligny has focused much of his prevention efforts on environmental strategies at state and local levels and work with youth.
